

Before They Were States....

Finding and Using Territorial Records

by Jack Butler

The United States was born owning territory outside the 13 original states. In the end, thirty three U. S. States were U. S. Territories before becoming states. The exceptions were:

- 13 Original Colonies - Virginia, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware, North Carolina, South Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Georgia.
- 2 Independent Republics – Texas, Vermont
- 2 Carved From Existing States – Kentucky, West Virginia

Note: Hawaii was originally a kingdom before American Colonists led a quiet revolution in 1893 and took over the island chain. Hawaii then operated as an independent nation briefly before becoming an American Territory in 1898. It remained a Territory until it became a state in 1959.

Every other state spent at least a short time as a territory. Many Territorial records were maintained by the Federal government. We will look at three distinct collections of territorial records.

Territorial Papers of the United States

This massive collection of transcribed Federal records covering the states and periods below.

Vol. 1 General

Vol. 2-3 Northwest Territory, north of the Ohio, 1787-1803

Vol. 4 Northwest Territory, south of the Ohio, 1790-1796

Vol. 5-6 The Territory of Mississippi, 1798-1817

Vol. 7-8 Indiana Territory, 1800-1816

Vol. 9 Territory of Orleans, 1803-1812

Vol. 10-12 Territory of Michigan, 1805-1837

Vol. 13-15 Territory of Louisiana, 1803-1821

Vol. 16-17 Territory of Illinois, 1809-1818

Vol. 18 Territory of Alabama, 1817-1819

Vol. 19-21 Territory of Arkansas, 1819-1836

Vol. 22-26 Territory of Florida 1821-1845

Vol. 27-28 Territory of Wisconsin, 1836-1848

The Territories Changed With Time, causing specific locations to appear in multiple volumes:

Alabama: Volumes 4, 5, 6, & 18

Arkansas: Volumes 13, 14, 15, 19, 20 & 21

Florida: Volumes 22, 23, 24, 25 & 26

Illinois: Volumes 2, 3, 7, 8, 16 & 17

Indiana: Volumes 2, 3, 7 & 8

Michigan: Volumes 2, 3, 7, 8, 10, & 12

Minnesota: Volumes 2, 3, 7, 8, 10, & 12

Mississippi: Volumes 4, 5, & 6

Wisconsin: 2, 3, 7, 8, 16, 17, 27 & 28

This series is also available as National Archives microfilm publication M721. Volumes 1-14 and 16-17 were issued by the State Department; volumes 15 and 18-28 were issued by the National Archives. Additional territorial papers for Wisconsin, Iowa, Oregon, and Minnesota are available as microfilm publications only.

You will find these volumes in larger libraries and research libraries. The Florida State Library in Tallahassee has a complete set, and a quick check of online catalogs shows that UCF in Orlando has both the 28 volume set of transcribed and fully indexed books and also the microfilmed version of the original records., as does Indian River County Main Library. The University of West Florida also has some volumes; check with other major libraries.

The Family History Library has microfilmed Carter's 28 volumes and also has some microfilms of original territorial records. These are available through your local Family History Center.

There is no single place with all of the Papers online, but different parts have been put online by genealogical and historical societies, or even individuals. An internet search using the full name, Territorial Papers of the United States, will likely turn up other repositories that hold this valuable resource..

Private Land Claims

At varying time, the British, French Spanish and Mexican governments owned large chunks of land that eventually became part of the U. S. All three of the countries made land grants to settlers in these areas. When they took over these territories, the U. S. established commissions and required the holders of these foreign grants to prove their right of ownership. Most of these claims arose in what are now the States of Louisiana, Missouri, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan, with a small number of claims appearing in other States.

The best example of these records can be found in the Florida Confirmed Spanish Land Grants. The Florida State Archives has made this marvelous collection available at <http://www.floridamemory.com/Collections/SpanishLandGrants/> as part of the Florida Memory Project.

This web site has a search capability as well as an alphabetical index. Files vary wildly, from 4 pages to several hundred pages. The genealogically valuable info can vary widely, too.

American State Papers

In the 1830s, Congress had the papers of the first fourteen congresses published in the American State Papers series. The nine volumes of Public Lands of the series are of most interest to genealogists. The volumes include military bounty lands, land claims in various territories, and grants to settlers, among other useful land records.

The Library of Congress has put the collection online as part of it A Century of Lawmaking for a New Nation series.

I have given you the URL for the opening page because there may be other links there that are worth exploring. Click the American State Papers link to the bottom left of the page. When the American State Papers page displays, you can choose to Browse or Search by clicking the appropriate link below the picture of Books on the left side of the page. Click Search to search by name, key words, phrase, or a combination. There are literally thousands of pages available.

Some Other Territorial Records

The Trans-Mississippi West 1804—1912, 4 parts. This series is really a finding aid created by the National Archives as a guide to its collection of territorial papers not covered by the Territorial Papers of the United States series. The collection covers the period 1803 – 1912, and holds records pertaining to the contiguous states west of the Mississippi River.

Territorial papers of the United States Senate, 1789-1873. Records and papers of the United States Senate concerning territories, their administration, governance, and movement toward statehood. Documents dated earlier or later than the period of existence of a particular territory are frequently included.

There are huge quantities of other territorial records out there. Many can be found online or the information necessary to locate them can be found on line. Try a simple search with the name of the State that interests you, along with the words Territorial Records and you will get a glimpse of what I mean.

Good hunting!
